HURRICANE KATE

A few years ago we used the most destructive equipment available to create a "professional" hurricane. We blasted two of our stock antennas with driving wind and rain to equal a 140 mph storm.

Both antennas came through without so much as a piece of mesh bent or a clip missing. And we were naturally delighted.

But "deep down", of course, you always wonder if any test...however intense...can duplicate the real thing.

Now we know

When Hurricane Kate shrieked across the Caribbean last November, three of our stock Paraclipses in varying sizes were among a total of 22 dishes at Bob Cooper's West Indies Video (WIV) Test Site on Provo Island.

The WIV facility is also responsible for 15 additional "off site" antennas scattered through the Turk and Caicos Islands. And its reason for being there is to test performance...not storm survival.

But Kate could not have cared less.

It was as if Hurricane Kate took dead aim at the Provo Test Site, slamming directly into it... battering its antennas from front, side and back with the first 100 mph winds the area had seen since 1960.

Of the 37 antennas at the test site and nearby locations, only two survived the 4½ hours of Kate's hammering with no damage whatsoever. Both were Paraclipse antennas... one was the new nine foot (2.8m) Cog Drive model (CD), the same kind you might find in use at any home, anywhere; the other a 16 foot (4.8m) antenna, our senior, commercial service antenna.

Several Paraclipse antennas survived with only minor damages due to motor drive failures.

In the accompanying photographs, you will see antennas utilizing various designs and materials. All of the antennas were equally exposed. None of the photos have been retouched except to delete specific logos.

Hurricane Kate proved that only the fittest will survive. Paraclipse.

All Paraclipse antennas are Ku-band compatible.

EDITORIAL

Dear inView Readers:

Welcome to the first issue of inView. We apologize if you received the guide late. Future issues will be mailed 2nd class, as you can't get a second class permit until you initially send your magazine out third class. They should be received one week earlier.

inView is the long-awaited, urgently needed publication that will continually serve you, the consumer. All of us here at inView are dedicated to quality, information and commitment.

As inView is a weekly publication, it will always be on top of the fast-breaking news that effects every dish owner and dealer in the satellite industry.

In addition to provocative news features, inView also will have articles and features intended to entertain and illuminate. For example, sports buffs will enjoy the controversial and knowledgeable Dick Young's column, "Young Ideas". Tom Shales provides satiric commentary guaranteed to raise a few eyebrows, cause a few laughs and provoke some thought. "Fight Back" by David Horowitz furnishes a candid and upbeat look at consumer rights over a variety of topics. On technical issues we present our own Bill Gorz who shares his expertise with tech tips as well as an easy-to-follow question and answer format. Another technical advisor includes ham radio ace Tom Perry.

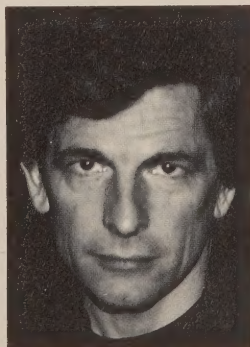

One person we are proud and privileged to feature is the man who started it all, Bob Cooper. Bob will be a contributing editor throughout future inView issues. As you can see, inView gives you much, much more than any other guide.

inView stands for nothing less than 100 percent commitment to both you and the industry. We demand nothing less from ourselves, than to keep our industry alive and healthy.

An example of our commitment is that inView will produce a weekly, one-hour program providing a continuing education service to satellite dealers. This program will be a video seminar delivering technical information and marketing strategies to the satellite dealer. Furthermore, inView, the magazine and the TV program, will visit successful dealers, distributors and manufacturers to conduct on-location interviews. The purpose is to have successful businesspeople share information and offer advice to their peers.

inView is the only publication to truly dedicate each and every page to the satellite industry — whether it's the dealer, dish owner or programmer.

Remember, a better satellite television guide is not on the horizon...it's inView!

Best Regards

Satellite's Hot Cable's Not

by Karen Howes

Many of America's 42 million cable subscribers don't like their local cable operator. The cable industry says it's because people haven't gotten used to the idea that TV isn't free, but the subscriber says he doesn't like cable ops because they charge too much money and do whatever they damn well please.

These subscribers might be referring to the cable rate increase in Denver of 458 percent, or the one in Connecticut of 307 percent. Maybe these subs are angry with their cable operator for removing their favorite PBS network, or replacing an independent broadcast station with their own 24-hour shopping channel. Whatever their reason, most cable subscribers are not happy with cable and in some cases, the subscribers are dropping coax and turning to alternatives like the rooftop antenna and C-band dishes.

If you own a satellite dish, you know you made the right choice when heads of our country's largest cable conglomerates are C-band dish owners, too.

Telecommunications Inc. is the nation's largest cable operator. TCI is the industry's 2,000-pound gorilla with interest in eight programming services, ownership in over 500 cable systems, and distribution to nearly six million cable households.

Peter Barton, once senior VP of TCI and now president of TCI-owned Cable Value Network, says many cable executives buy a dish. "It's a good deal," says Barton. (Even with paying artificially high prices for a defeated decoder, and even with paying unfair prices for programming, the C-band dish owner still comes out 100 channels better, a few bucks cheaper, and a decade ahead of his coax counterpart.)

The average cable subscriber has access to 30 channels. Through satellite, the selection is limited only by the number of satellites and the amount of programmers using those satellites. Today, there are 500 C-band channels of which 130 are in use for video programming. The dish owner has 300 percent more channels available to him than does the cable subscriber.

If a cable customer wanted to maximize his use of the 30-channel cable system, it would cost him in the neighborhood of $70 each month or $2.30 per channel each month. The dish owner would spend $753.75 per year to subscribe to all scrambled and nonscrambled services marketed via satellite.

After adding in the cost of the $3,000 satellite system spread over five years, the consumer would pay 86 cents per channel, per month as a C-band sub compared to $2.30 as a cable sub. The dish owner saves 267 percent.

Increased selection and decreased price are the most immediately visible advantages of owning a dish, but probably the most important is the viewer's freedom in paying for what he wants and accessing anything available to be watched. Where the dish owner has a choice, the cable sub has ultimatums.

Jack Valenti represents Hollywood in his role as president of the Motion Picture Association. "It is dismaying," said Valenti that "a giant Multiple System Operator can be the sole arbiter of what entertainment, education, news, cultural visual material that the cable monopoly's subscribers may see."

In a meeting before the Public Broadcasting Industry, Valenti claimed, "In virtually every other outlet for entertainment, for news, for education — if you don't like the theater you go to, you get dozens more to choose from. If you don't like the radio station, turn to several dozen more. If you don't like certain TV station go to another.

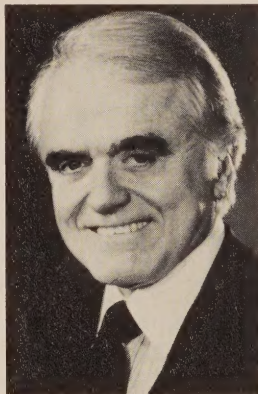

But," says the Hollywood spokesman, "if you don't like your cable system, brother, you have no choice."

Today's cable subscriber doesn't have to listen to the powerful words of Hollywood to realize that cable has too much control over his life. The cable subscriber is already feeling the effects of someone else telling him which channel to turn to and how much to pay. If a sub gets cable to watch CNN, he has to pay for 10 other channels plus subsidize his next door neighbor's subscription to Home Box Office.

If a Manhattan cable subscriber wants a movie service, he can choose between HBO and Cinemax. Showtime is not offered because the Big Apple's cable operator, is owned by HBO/Cinemax's parent, Time Inc.

"If you don't like a certain TV station, go to another. But, if you don't like your cable system, brother, you have no choice."

Representing Manhattan cable subscribers in a class action suit against Time Inc. and their ATC cable operator, Robert Perry describes the major cable players as vertically integrated whereby, "The same company owns operators and programming services." According to Perry, the cable operator shields himself from lawsuits by "claiming they have the same rights as a newspaper and," Perry says, "the operator says he has the right to editorially control every single channel. They claim no court, no agency, and no congress can order them to set aside a number of channels for diversity purposes."

So why put a subscriber's dollar in someone else's pocket? And while they're at it...While cable is buying into programming services and while programming services are selling out to cable, why carry any channel in which the operator has no equity interest?

The cable operator can't be blamed for dropping PBS in Tampa or blacking out WIVB from Buffalo. They can't be criticized for marking up retail 500 percent, or transferring a 5 percent city franchise fee to subscriber bills in Wilmington, Mass. The cable op' isn't Khadafy. He's just a good businessman. Unfortunately for the consumer, the line between the two is getting thinner.

Two years ago, 33 percent of dishes sold were installed in cabled areas. The dish began as a means for rural families to get television. Later, it became a way for cable subs to access an alternative.

Many people chose the satellite dish not for free TV, but for fair TV. There are 15 movie channels on satellite. There are 23 Superstations, four PBS feeds, over seven sports networks, every basic cable channel, at least 55 audio services, hundreds of independent transmissions and telecasts, 13 religious programs, text and data, and more of each every month.

With an eye into the future, what really makes C-band hot is its ability to distribute programming cheaper than any other broadcast or cable medium.

At a time when America's #1 network is controlled by the country's #2 defense contractor, satellite has unlatched a window inviting independents to produce programs without working through Coke and Paramount, or building a $2 million television station, or wiring a city for cable. Satellite makes it possible for the consumer to receive as much diverse TV programming as he can receive printed publications.

Prior to Satellite, only those with big bucks or big backers could afford the TV medium to communicate ideas. But for as little as $500 per hour and the price of a half-inch camcorder, anyone can reach 1.7 million homes today and double that tomorrow.

A quick glance down the road finds satellite television as a way for computer techies and hobbyists to obtain information on industry breakthroughs. It's a way for fishing nuts to tune into programs on new gear and dried-up lakes. Where else could farmers find the latest on farming equipment and animal health care. Not on Network. The cost for production per household would be too great. But via satellite, a well-produced show can go to as few as 50,000 homes and bear a cost of .05 per household. It's less than direct mail, and more inspiring.

C-band will also be the first testing ground for high definition video. While our networks are sending programs over a 525 line, NTSC scheme, satellite producers will begin broadcasting for 1,025 line screens. Until the FCC broadens current frequency spots for broadcasters, satellite and video rentals will be the only mediums for viewing high definition television. Barry Rebo, owner of this country's first high definition studio, sees theatrical distribution moving from the film reel to high definition video over satellite. "Sony already has the projection equipment. "It's incredible," says Rebo.

Until then, we have NTSC at 525 lines, but via dish, the quality can't be beat. "It's studio quality," says one dish dealer. "My customers can't believe it's the same TV they've been watching off cable."

C-band gives the rural home a chance to see. It provides the cable subscriber with an alternative, and it spreads the power to communicate through television to those not interested in building a fourth network, or in rating high with Wall Street, or in selling billions of dollars in defense contracts to our government. The C-band industry, as it has established itself today, fosters this country's faith in the first amendment where "it is the purpose of the First Amendment to preserve an uninhibited marketplace of ideas in which truth will ultimately prevail, rather than to countenance monopolization of that market." (Red Lion Broadcasting vs. FCC, 1969)

It was cable's initial hope to play this role and to deliver narrowcasted, special-focus programming to individual communities. In its youth, cable fashioned itself as the bearer of communications to outlying homes. It was only in assessing the extra cost in wiring distant towns that the industry decided to stay close to suburbia. Even with each cable subscriber turning up as a $1,700 asset on an operator's books, a short cable run up a 75-foot driveway costs the op $400. Stringing coaxe an additional mile for one house becomes economically out of the picture.

The C-band dish picks up where cable left off, when 40 percent of its subscriber base came under the control of Corporate Giants. Yet in the wake of all this C-band, Corporate Cable and entrepreneurs alike are hoping for the onset of KU.

Peter Sutro, president of MPI Satellite, says, "The future is in KU." Others are also routing for the high-powered, 12 ghz technology which would reduce the size for a dish from 12 to three feet.

Last summer, Home Box Office made a pact with RCA to market and distribute TV programming over RCA's KU band birds, K1 and K3. The HBO/RCA venture was dubbed Crimson and they say it's for resale through cable only, but those following the behavior of the television industry are vying for control of the thus far nonexistent Ku band marketplace.

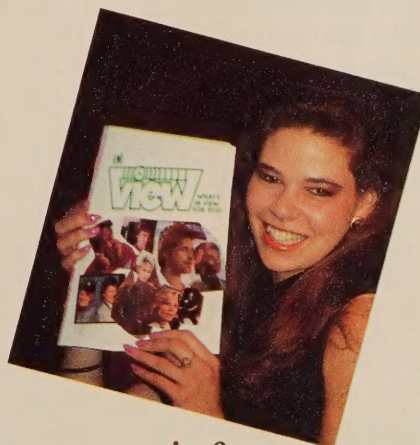

Some don't understand why KU is so hot with the big corporations. Already, two well-funded KU band programming ventures have gone under, taking millions of dollars along for the downhill ride.

HBO and RCA believe their venture will be a hit, but there aren't any guarantees. Some C-band proponents believe entertainment will never make it to KU because of its expense and its application in the corporate marketplace. Corporate networkers say there aren't enough KU channels to meet corporate's increasing use of satellites for data and digitized video traffic. Unless government and industry speed up KU bir launches, there are those who strongly believe KU will never see the light of day.

Hot or cold or just lukewarm, KU is out there and it's a business of which big business wants a part. So where does that leave the C-band dish owner? Not without programming, but with more programming. Most satellite receivers on the market today are C/KU compatible. The C-band dish far exceeds the size needed to receive a KU transmission to C-band dish owner is all set to pick up Crimson's following of K1 if that's what he wants.

In comparing apples to apples or oranges to pears — no matter how you look it, the C-band dish owner has bought a better deal and invested in a better future.

NEWS UPDATE

N.Y. Yankees Clear For Dish Owners

New Yorkers are angry at the Yankees for yanking 100 of its 164-game season from off-air station WPIX to put them on the satellite-delivered sportschannel. Forty-four games will remain on WPIX, but will, without a dish, miss most of the season.

Sportschannel will air the Yankee games on Satcom F4, Channel 23. The sports network is not scrambled, but they plan to encrypt within the next few years.

NBC On Top

Since the September Television season kicked off, NBC has led the way in ratings. Here are the top 10 programs on network as averaged since the season began:

1. The Cosby Show (NBC)
2. Family Ties (NBC)
3. Cheers (NBC)
4. Murder She Wrote (CBS)
5. The Golden Girls (CBS)
6. 60 Minutes (CBS)
7. Night Court (NBC)
8. Growing Pains (ABC)
9. Moonlighting (ABC)
10. Who's The Boss (ABC)

WTBS May Go Local

Ted Turner's Superstation, WTBS, may be yanked off satellite and sent off-air to Atlanta residents only. This move would come as a result of Turner selling 35 percent of WTBS to 14 cable operators and Kirk Kerkorian.

The new partners hope to replace the Superstation with a new programming channel. The new service would be able to air many of WTBS' old favorites, but some programs would be replaced by movies from Turner's MGM film library.

Turner, who now owns 55 percent of the station, does not appear to agree with his new partners on this plan. However, for the cable operator, a Superstation isn't as lucrative as a programming service. Cable operators can't sell local ad time on WTBS, but could sell ads on a satellite programming service. Last year cable generated 187 million through local ad sales.

Showtime Brings Package to Dish Owners

Viacom's Showtime/The Movie Channel announces a long-awaited program package. The basic 12 channel satellite package costs $120/year and it includes CNN, Headlines News, CBN, Discovery, ESPN, Lifetime, MTV, Nashville Network, Nickelodeon, USA Network, VH-1, and The Learning Channel.

At press time, only three of 12 offered were full-time scrambled signals. Also offered for $20/month or $240/year is the basic 12, plus Showtime and The Movie Channel. For those already subscribing to the two movie series, the additional 12 will only cost $6/month.

Turner Broadcasting Carry South Eastern Conference

Turner Broadcasting announces it will carry 10-12 live Southeastern college football games during the 1987-88 football season. The games will air on Saturday afternoons.

Alaskan Music Video Channel Cooler than MTV

Catch-22 is a low power 24-hour music video station giving MTV a run for the money in Anchorage. Catch-22 is so successful, that it will spread its programming concept to other markets, such as Eugene, Oregon.

Catch-22 is more conservative than MTV, with less heavy metal, but they also rock out more than VH-1. In addition to this music compromise, Catch-22 offers locally produced, weekly music shows, national music news and hourly news and weekly updates.

The success of Catch-22 lies not only with its locally fine-tuned programming, but also with the fact that only 30 percent of Anchorage is wired for cable. It's estimated that 40 percent of the residents tune in to Catch-22 at least once a week.

DAT for The C-A-R

Clarion is the first manufacturer off the line with an In-car, digital audio tape (DAT) player. This fall, the unit will be offered as an option on Japanese cars sold in Japan. The option will cost about $1,320.

Clarion predicts DAT players will account for 50 percent of the In-car market within five years.

Since the Clarion machine is designed for playback only, it shouldn't be long before it is available in the U.S.

A Chicken in Every Pot, A Mobile Uplink for Every Candidate

Today's presidential candidate now has instant access to America's TV stations. Thanks to mobile satellite uplink trucks.

Using the mobile uplink enables candidates to appear live and respond quickly to another candidate without extensive travelling.

In this age of specialization, campaigning will become less generalized. Now a presidential hopeful can address specific regions on their local issues.

Although 700 TV stations are equipped to receive the signal, there is no guarantee they will use it. Candidates will use the mobile uplink judiciously. It is assured they will rent the $3,000-$5,000 a day trucks only for newsworthy statements.

Are The Chips Down for DAT Opponents?

Consumers may have something to applaud regarding the issue of digital audio tape (DAT) recorders. At the same time the recording industry suffered a major setback in its push to restrict the sale of DAT recorders.

Last week, Housespeaker Jim Wright (D-TX) ordered the provision outlawing the sale of DAT components not equipped with anti-copying chips removed from a congressional trade bill.

Wright and his supporters maintain the provision was protectionist, and fear other industries could use the provision to demand their own special interest fixes.

The battle of the issue still rages intensely. DAT opponents, led by Rep. Henry Waxman (D-CA) vow to step up their attacks regardless of the success of "spoiler chip" legislation, DAT recorders should hit U.S. stores by fall.

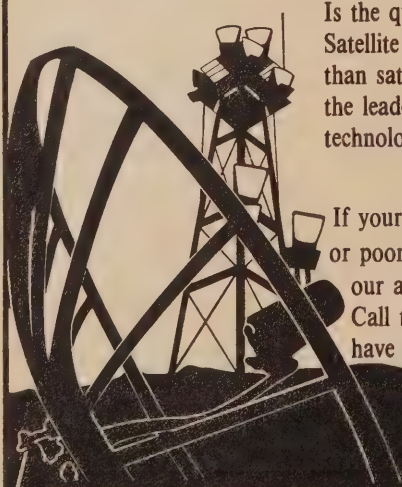

Consumer Package Readied

The United Satellite Industry Association (USIA) is lining up programmers in a package for resale to consumers through dealers. USIA says the prices will be better than current packages, but the price will not be as good as it should be because programmers will not sell to USIA at wholesale rates.

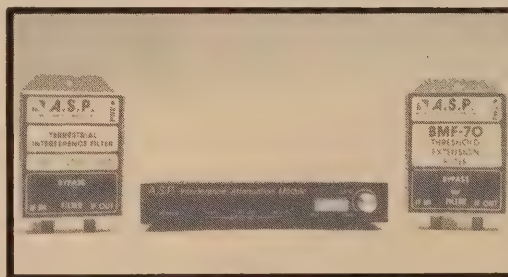

In February of this year, General

Instruments began shutting off consumer videocipher II decoders. G.I. manufactures the VCII, and the turn off's are an attempt to catch pirates. But G.I. is turning off paying customers, too. If a consumer switched off by G.I. is a legitimate subscriber he is treated similar to the pirate. Both must send their VCII's to G.I., pay a freight fee and wait to be reauthorized. The programmers don't offer refunds for days without service. Civil Liberties attorney Jeremiah Guttman says the acts of the manufacture violate the consumers' 14th amendment — the right to privacy and property. A class action suit has been organized by 70 consumers. For information write to Class Action Info., c/o this magazine.

LETTERS

As inView is a new publication, we will be looking forward to hearing from our readers. Until that time however, we are delighted to print a few letters from the viewers of Boresight News.

DEAR READERS:

During Boresight News, we requested that you, the viewers, send letters to both 20/20 and 60 Minutes regarding the monopolization and over-powering control that cable companies would like to have over dish owners and their television sets.

The response we have been receiving has been a good one, and we expect it to get even better with your support. Once again, we request and encourage you to participate in this fight by writing to either or both 20/20 and 60 Minutes at the addresses listed below:

157 Columbus Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10023

60 Minutes
c/o CBS Television
51 West 52nd St.
New York, N.Y. 10019

TO THE EDITOR:

I am enclosing a copy of a letter sent to 20/20 for your information. I would also like to receive whatever information you have available on becoming involved in the class action suit against GI or MaCom in regard to the decoders.

AvWeston
157 Columbus Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10023

DEAR SIR:

I am writing in regards to an issue which should be addressed by the media. What I am referring to is the great injustice being committed by the cable conglomerates at it relates to the consumer. In essence what they are doing is monopolizing the commodity of premium programming, ie. HBO, Showtime, etc., thus, creating their own price structure.

I represent a satellite TV dealership in rural Michigan. Here, as in many parts of the nation, poor TV reception via a conventional antenna is a reality. With the introduction of satellite TV into the market a whole new variety of entertaining and educational programming was made accessible. Then came the scrambling dilemma, pricing these medium to below-average income families right out of the market: $400 initial investment for a decoder plus approximately $10 per month for EACH service. In the meantime, while cable companies are paying a fraction of this cost (pennies per subscriber) and retailing to the public, the cable companies are asking satellite dealerships, such as ourselves, to market their programming and sell their decoders with virtually no financial incentive — unless a free duffle bag with each annual subscription sold qualifies!!!!?

If our Congressional members and the general public were more well-informed on this exploitation I believe we would see some action taken to deregulate the "signals from the sky." I look forward to seeing these grossly underrated issues highlighted in a future episode of your broadcast.

Judy Greenwood
SATELLITE SPECIALISTS
Sandusky, Michigan

We, at Boresight News, were requested to forward the following letter on to 60 Minutes

To Whom it May Concern:

I am writing to you because of my concern for the TVRO industry. I am shocked at how out of control the Warner Comm./Time Life conglomerate has gotten with the monopolization of my television set.

Rather than competing on a fair basis with the backyard satellite dish industry, they have managed to nearly wipe out the whole industry. Instead of competing with good reception, better programming and lower prices, it seems they have poured millions into lobbying for scrambling.

They claim I have no right to "free" television viewing. They ought to see my receipts for the purchase and maintenance of my TVRO equipment. It averages out to about $500 per year, and I just have an average unit.

Now they want me to pay from $200 to $500 more a year to local cable company and programmers just for the right to view television in my home, with my family, off my antenna!

Consider the life span of today's descrambling units. Six months ago they were sold for $325 to $500. We were told at the time they'd be good for 3 to 5 years. Now I hear they are ready for a change already! The old units (six months old) are no longer hi-tech enough and they are going to a new unit ranging from $400 to $700. How long will this one last?

It's like the pot calling the kettle black — when they claim I'm a pirate!

Somehow, I feel if Space Shuttles and Satellite technology had been around when B. Franklin and T. Jefferson were, they'd have included our inalienable right to "freedom of the air ways!"

Another aspect of this problem concerns the industry itself. N.E. Ark. has high unemployment. Well, all the businesses connected with TVRO in our area have suffered greatly. Many have gone bankrupt. It has served to tax further the economic depression we're in.

The skies are going dark. It scares me. In the near future only those willing to pay out the kazoo will have the privilege of watching soaps, cartoons and the evening news. How much will you charge us to watch 60 Minutes? (And how much for "The Young and The Restless?")

FIGHT BACK

Legal Advice at a Reasonable Cost

Most people consult an attorney only when they absolutely have to. As a consequence, they sometimes find themselves in trouble—trouble they could have avoided if they had just talked to a lawyer first.

Legal services can help people avoid the huge costs of suing and being sued.

We Americans have what is probably the world's most expensive and over-burdened legal system. Legal fees of $100 an hour are common, and a civil lawsuit may take five years or more to come to trial.

Last year there were 81 million lawsuits filed in this country. No one knows how many of those could have been avoided with a little advance planning and some sound legal advice. That's what prepaid legal plans are all about.

Give people access to an attorney at a reasonable price and they may never have to go to court at all. Prepaid legal plans work a lot like prepaid medical plans. Certain benefits are free, others are provided at a predetermined cost.

One plan I looked at costs $6.75 a month. For that fee you have access to an attorney at will on the telephone. You get a return call that business day or the next day. You get a free will. You have six pages of legal documents—or any document—reviewed for free. You have consultation with the attorney for nothing. And then you get into other services that have a maximum price that the lawyer can charge.

For example, an uncontested divorce would cost $210 or an uncontested adoption about $180. And then if you get into the area of personal injury or contingent fees, there's a maximum of 29 percent as opposed to the market price which is 33.3 percent. There is a maximum fee of $50 per hour. The plan also provides for $1,000 bail to be provided immediately by merely calling an 800 number. But the real value of having a lawyer as near as your phone is getting the kind of advice that will keep you out of court.

A prepaid legal service attorney told me that he gets calls all the time from people who are entering escrows, purchase agreements, signing installment contracts and buying cars. He said, "It's a lot cheaper to call and get the information than end up in a lawsuit later."

Of course, the more comprehensive your coverage, and the better your benefits, the more that prepaid legal service is going to cost. To keep the cost as low as possible, corporation, unions and fraternal organizations are now offering prepaid legal services to their members under various kinds of group plans.

Ten years ago, fewer than 1 million Americans had prepaid legal coverage. Today the number is somewhere near 7 million. Some attorneys may still object to such non-traditional legal practice. But the basic idea of making simple legal advice widely available at a reasonable cost makes a lot of sense, especially when good advice is becoming less of a luxury and more of a necessity.

(Never before, not even when Muhammad Ali refused to take the step forward, has there been such a mail reaction, numerically or emotionally, as regards the Dwight Gooden case. What makes this response unique is that the majority and fed up with the druggies and with their alibis. Therefore, because the issue is so vital, I depart from the usual format of printing only letters that rail at me.)

Dear Dick: I am not much of a sports fan but do work in the drug and alcoholism field as a counselor. I want to thank you. It is rare that a journalist understands the issues involved. The basis treatment is responsibility. That will never happen until there is also punishment, not "poor baby." If anything will change public opinion it will be through people like yourself, who can influence the public in a positive way.

—Adrian J. Hunkele,
Massapequa Park, N.Y.

Dear Adrian: It is encouraging that someone in your field is not slobbering over these spoiled brats who have no self-discipline.

Dear Mr. Hypocrite: Read the laws of your America, especially the Constitution. Drug testing is illegal.

—John Egan,
Lyndhurst, N.J.

Dear Mr. Darrow: Not as a requisite for employment, it isn't. In fact, an AIDS test is required to join a new singles club in New York. You could look it up.

My Dear Mr. Young: It is just too bad that some of the black people I've worked with for years have to suffer for those other bums who use and push drugs. Some infiltrated our work but didn't last long because the good black people wouldn't go along with them. Hooray for the good blacks.

—C.D.
The Bronx

My Dear C.D.: What you mention in one of the most important facets in the black fight for equality. The good blacks (and whites) must demand that the Dwight Goodens, et al, shape up, and stop making excuses for them. Equal responsibility is part of equal rights.

Dear Mr. Young: What you have written is terrible. As a former drug user myself, I can see that no one in your family used drugs. I am sure that if your son or daughter did, your opinion would change.

—Robert A.
Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dear Mr. A: I'm sorry my children couldn't accommodate you. Maybe they didn't want to break their mother's heart.

Dear Dick: Did you read Steinbrenner's praise of Ueberroth's "drug program" after the Gooden shocker? I'm going to negotiate with George for the "nickel bag" concession at Yankee Stadium. George is ripe in his present state of mind.

—Art Sweeney
South Jersey

Dear Art: George is wiser than you think. He's snuggling up to The Great Commissioner for the day Ubie makes the White House. The Court of St. James beckons.

Dear Mr. Young: Keep praising youngsters who make it without the use of drugs. I hope the Civil Liberties Union or some other bleeding heart organization doesn't get after you for telling the truth.

—Mary J. Krupp
The Bronx

Dear Mrs. Krupp: Don't worry. The Post isn't as weak-kneed as the Dodgers.

Dear Mr. Young: I give Dwight Gooden a lot of credit for admitting he has a problem.

—Frances Ruocco
Brooklyn, N.Y.

Dear Mr. Ruocco: What admitting? When confronted by Frank Cashen with the positive results of his drug test, Gooden said, "That's can't be." Druggies lie. I am astonished that some writers quote druggies as though it were the word from the mount.

Dick Young: I do not condone the use of drugs in sports or anywhere. However, I do have respect for those who had a drug problem and recovered to lead productive and useful lives.

—David DeSilva
Brooklyn, N.Y.

David DeSilva: Fine. How about those who always lead clean and productive lives. They are the ones I respect. We are wasting energies on the druggies that should be spent on the good youth.

Dear Mr. Young: The fact that Gooden is a public figure does not make his mistake any more serious than other drug users.

—Kenneth Lewis and friends
Greenwich, Conn.

CINDY SAYS

Burt's latest fish story; Collins searched by customs

By Cindy Adams

Burt Reynolds installed a two-piece aquarium in his bedroom. Two pieces. A custom-made double-tank, connected by a plastic tunnel so the fishies can get their daily exercise swimming fro and to. It cost $30,000 and it's at the foot of his bed. Question: Considering Loni Anderson is sharing that bed, why does he need something to look at? ... Eddie Murphy recently had a delayed birthday celebration at Hollywood's Laugh Factory. He arrived with Mike Tyson and Larry Holmes and two bodyguards. Hours later, he left with Mike Tyson and Larry Holmes and two bodyguards - and one beauty named Paula Smith. God only knows what kind of birthday gift she gave him.

Tova Borgnine, Mrs. Ernest, sells beauty products based on cactus. Ernie recently gashed his cheek and busted his arm in Johannesburg on the "Skeleton Coast" location. He fell on cactus. ... Five thou each.

Arriving from London, Joan Collins was - pardon the expression - searched. By U.S. customs. Miss Collins, who has experienced the physical sensations before, was not thrilled. Said Joan: "In London I'm treated politely, and I don't pay taxes. Here I pay millions of dollars, and I'm treated like a criminal."

TWO FACES OF THE FCC

When the Federal Communications Commission declared recently that it was going to crack down on sexually explicit language in broadcasting, it was slapping itself on the wrist. Or shooting itself in the foot. The FCC was addressing a problem it helped create.

Six years of anything-goes, devil-may-care, public-be-damned deregulation of the broadcast industry nurtured the environment in which so-called raunch radio was able to flourish. By announcing the FCC's intention to get tough, outgoing chairman Mark S. Fowler was in effect declaring his own policies and philosophy to be colossal failures.

There are those who knew this all along.

For six years Fowler has howled a tirelessly repeated litany about how "the marketplace," not the government, should set the rules for broadcasting. Right. So in the matter of raunch radio, the marketplace was heard, loudly and clearly. In city after city, frisky deejays regaling listeners with lewd innuendo zoomed to the tops of the ratings in their markets.

Fowler said that what the marketplace wants, the marketplace should get. Suddenly he's decided to make an exception.

In Rochester, N.Y., a TV station recently polled its viewers to see how many would like to watch unedited R-rated movies in prime time. Electronic Media reports that 23,000 viewers cast yes votes and only 5,277 were opposed. The marketplace spoke decisively. But according to the new FCC edict on dirty words, that vote could be overturned by the very commission that has said it opposes regulation of broadcasting.

With the raunch radio edict, Fowler seems to be conceding his vision of an unregulated Utopia is bunk. Indeed, for communications activists, for anyone who believes that the electronic media have enormous influence on the quality of American life — and thus enormous obligations — it wasn't just unrealistic, it was ruinous.

Clearly the most radical and arguably the most reckless chairman in the history of the FCC, Fowler will probably live to see much of his dirty work undone. If the FCC won't regulate, Congress will force it to. A golden age of de-deregulation seems at hand. One bill now being considered would codify the principles of the Fairness Doctrine, which protects the public from one-sided coverage of controversial issues.

Naturally, Fowler wanted the doctrine abolished.

Fowler was the great absolutionist. He absolved broadcasters of all social responsibility. Their task was only to make money. In making money, it was imagined, the social benefits would fall into place. The precise social benefits of raunch radio are hard to discern.

So are the precise social benefits of gigantic mergers of communications companies, de-emphasis on minority hiring practices at TV and radio stations, and an avalanche of witless kiddie shows built around the marketing campaigns for toys and dolls. These are some of the legacies of the Fowler era. Of course, Fowler was up-front about where his sympathies lay. He saw his mission as making life easier and more profitable for businessmen in broadcasting. No other interests concerned him.

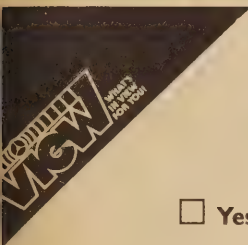

Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America (MPAA), once noted: "The rules that have protected the powerless are the rules that he's trying to change." David Levy, executive director of the Caucus for Producers, Writers and Directors in Hollywood, wrote: "We view his years on the FCC as a disaster for the public good and as a gigantic windfall for private interests."

While Fowler loved speaking to cheering throngs at industry get-togethers, consumer advocate Ralph Nader says Fowler repeatedly declined requests to address public-interest groups. "Fowler has done more damage and proposed more damage than any of the top 100 Reagan people," Nader says.

The dirty-words decision is like the first coat of farewell tar-and-feathers for Fowler, who has just left office. Other, and much more significant, reversals and revisions of Fowlerism are sure to follow. Reaganomics will end up looking immortal by comparison.

"I don't consciously try to make those meetings entertaining or funny," Fowler said of FCC proceedings in an interview last June. "There are serious issues. There's a lot of money at stake." Yes. Money. A lot of money. It didn't dawn on Fowler that there was more at stake than that.

We're as well rid of him as the old Transylvanian villagers were well rid of vampires. Fowler was one for the books: a mad scientist who kept trying to burn down his own laboratory.

NETWORK BLUES

What are our little old networks up to these days? Mostly licking their wounds and burying their dead. Another TV season has just ended, and there was plenty of bad news to go around. America's TV habits continue to evolve and the three networks find themselves a shriveling part of them.

NBC won again in the Nielsen ratings, and hugely. CBS had its worst prime-time season ever, and ABC had what is believed to be the worst prime-time season any network has had in the history of television.

Even NBC can share in the gloom, since figures show the total number of TV viewers declined, and so did the portion that the networks get. HUT levels ("Homes Using Television") slipped a fraction from 63.8 percent last year to 63.0 this year. The combined three-network share of those watching TV dropped from 77.0 to 75.6.

If these seem like tiny slips, remember that the networks, faced with more and more competition for viewers, see any erosion as frightful, hideous, and ghastly. They make for the Malox lickity-split.

David F. Poltrack, CBS research whiz, says the problem for the networks this season was a death of fresh superhits. "The new-show magic was not there," Poltrack says, "and miniseries and TV movies did not perform as well." An electro-magnetic blockbuster such as "The Cosby Show" lures disenchanted viewers back to network TV.

As is painfully obvious, nothing as attractive as "Cosby" was introduced this year. No new series made it into the seasonal top 10—the first time that's happened since 1977-78. Poltrack says all three networks should worry.

Brandon Tartikoff, the programming genius behind NBC's enormous success, doesn't like being grouped with the losers, however. "Our ratings are up so, to quote Tonot, what do you mean 'we,' Paleface?," he says in response to Poltrack. "How do we get lumped in with 'Spies' and 'Roxie' and the George Segal show?" Those were three of many recent CBS flops.

"I am sensitive to the fact we came out of the season without a show that is at this moment a huge hit," Tartikoff says defensively. "But I would bet at least half my mortgage that by summer, 'Alf' will be firmly ensconced in the top 10 or top 15. Who says every show has to be a hit in its first year?"

In these times of expanding threats to network dominance, a season short of smashes can have severe spillover effects. Poltrack says the HUT levels are down because of increased use of VCR's, not to tape network or cable shows but to play back tapes rented from the local video shop (playing back a rented tape is not counted by Nielsen as "using television").

For CBS, which sustained three decades of almost uninterrupted ratings leadership, the poor showing this year is especially humiliating. Rumors persist in Hollywood that one of the two men in charge of CBS Entertainment—standby B. Donald (Bud) Grant or upstart Kim LeMasters—will be departing.

According to one insider, Coopers & Lybrand, the big accounting firm now going over CBS expenditures, found it odd that it takes two men to run the show at CBS when NBC and ABC make do with one each

(and both named Brandon; ABC's is Brandon Stoddard).

But CBS spokesman George Schweitzer denies the firm recommended that one of the pair get a heave-ho. "I am not aware they made any such recommendation," Schweitzer says. CBS president Laurence A. Tisch has made his displeasure with the prime-time ratings known, however, and isn't likely to want to hew to the status quo.

As if the networks didn't have enough to worry about, Nielsen plans finally to introduce this year its hotly debated People Meter system of ratings-taking. The People Meters give much more detailed information than the old meters and diaries. But all three networks fear the change will show them doing even worse than they do under the present system.

There even have been rumors that "The Cosby Show" may turn out to be less than a megahit. Tartikoff does not look forward to the new era. "It's like moving back the fences and saying, 'Now hit 30 more home runs,'" he mopes.

As for CBS, Tartikoff says, "Forget the People Meters; they lose 5 percent of their audience every year by death." CBS traditionally appeals to older viewers. That's been part of its problem.

There was some good news for the networks. Poltrack says that "no cable services showed appreciable growth" this year—not HBO, Showtime, The Movie Channel, or any of the others, although the Cable News Network inched up from a 1.1 rating to a 1.3. The networks won't lose any sleep over that, but then, they don't have much sleep left to lose.

New Moves For A New Group

by Tom Perry

Since the Las Vegas show, a group of independent satellite dealers have been working overtime to put together a national satellite dealer association, called the United Satellite Industries Association (USIA). I am one of a dozen independent dealers from across the country and volunteered to act as interim director to form this organization. Here is my progress report:

It is important to understand that this was a grass roots movement by the people involved. It was the consensus that a new independent organization needs to be formed.

Independent, Non Profit, Democratic

Two major ideals had to be adhered to if I was going to support this new group heart and soul. First, the association had to have complete disclosure of its finances. I was never satisfied with the industry's first trade group, SPACE, which would not disclose disbursement of funds.

Chuck Hewitt, SPACE's executive VP, maintained that he didn't want the enemy to know the financial weakness of the satellite industry. It was sophistry. Our enemy knew we were poor. We may never know the truth about SPACE and where the money went. We hear stories of the millions of dollars paid to lawyers who never appeared in court on our behalf. And we hear other things, but we didn't know. We only paid the bill. Some of us paid it indirectly, through the manufacturers and distributors who contributed most of the funding for SPACE. We paid to attend their trade shows which gave them credibility, power and money, but we never knew where that money was spent.

The USIA will provide audited financial statements to its members. No tricks, no creative bookkeeping, no hidden slush funds. We are a chartered non-profit organization. Remember that, because it is an important point. It assures that the dealer's money will be spent as the dealers and only dealers dictate.

Secondly, every dealer has an equal vote. Our officers and spokespersons will be elected from within. No more taxation without representation, and believe me, that's what you have when a portion of every dollar you spend on hardware goes to an association in which you don't have an equal voice.

In USIA, every single dealer has an equal voice. Any member can nominate someone for office, or run for office in the association. We will hold free and open elections - and that will be a first in this industry. One man, one vote, an idea so simple I can't believe it hasn't been tried before. We are not afraid of the dealers, we are the dealers; and we are going to finally keep our power for ourselves.

Now folks, those words scare the hell out of a lot of people in this industry. Just the thought that the dealers are actively organizing into an effective national association that has the will to use its inherent economic might is already having an effect on those in positions of power. Just the hint that we are considering holding our own trade show, run by the dealers for the dealers, is shaking up the status quo.

We may have real problems getting the word out about the USIA because of this independent stand. There are many who don't want us to succeed. We will probably be attacked from many fronts because those in power want to hold that power exclusively for themselves. Some may try to use their economic clout to keep our efforts from being reported with any prominence in the trade media. The USIA is no threat to those who really want the independent dealer to survive, but we will be a formidable adversary to those who do not!

We Have A World To Win and Only Our Chains To Lose

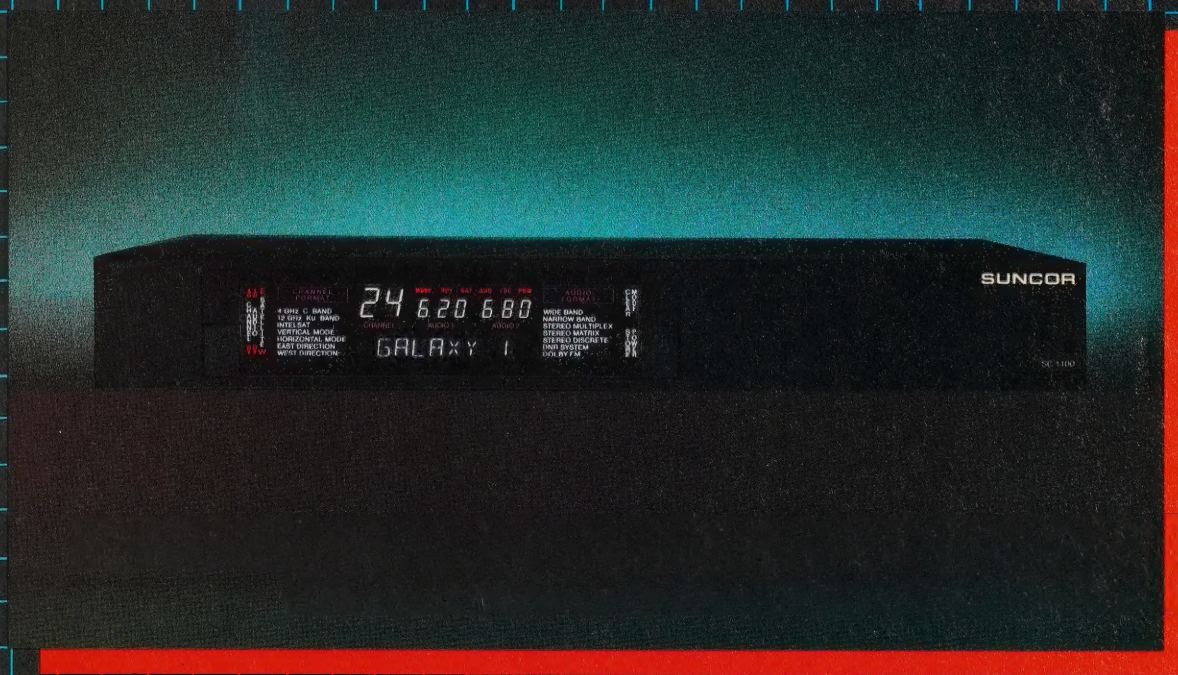

If we can convince our fellow satellite dealers to join and be active in the USIA, we can most assuredly throw off the chains that bind us. But without your support we will assuredly fail. Remember, you started this in Las Vegas, and the electricity in the room that night is still reverberating in my bones. I truly feel that we can make this work.

Yes, we are asking for money! Dues are $200 per year, but we have an easy payment plan for those, like myself, who are struggling to feed the kids. Even if you can't afford to join at the present time, although I surely hope you can find a way, at least fill out an application so we can stay in touch! We need numbers, if you have a list of dealers and would be willing to share it with us for recruitment purposes only, give us a call. If you belong to a state or regional organization, spread the word at your next meeting. Those who volunteered to put the USIA together are all honorable people who have worked long and hard to lay the groundwork for a truly effective and democratic organization. Please don't let them down. Write or call for an application today. The industry you save is your own.

Filtering Your Frustrations A Tech Tip on T.I.

Just about everyone who's owned a home satellite dish has had at least a few problems with Terrestrial Interference. Occasional loss of picture quality and problems where you point the dish at a certain area are a couple of the most common problems you will come across.

There are two basic types of interference — the first is called 'ingress' interference - it usually is picked up by poorly grounded equipment - bad braid connections on coax cables being quite common. It can be caused by a variety of sources — TV and radio stations, mobile radio and car phones etc. 60 cycle hum from the power line can also be cured by proper grounding.

The other type of interference is in a higher frequency range — it's picked up by the antenna, LNA, a down converter.

Most of this can be attributed to microwave links that carry our phone and data traffic. The problem is due to 'C' band used by satellites being on the same 3.7 to 4.2 GHz band width as so many microwave links. Microwave interference can be a serious problem, especially in the large cities.

The best way to see if you're going to have a problem is to make sure a dish and receiver are brought along on the site survey and signals from all across the arc of the satellite are checked for quality.

When you stop to consider that the earth radiates RF energy like a small star you can see the importance of a thorough site survey and Terrestrial Interference check.

The best way to ascertain the direction, and nature of the particular source of T.I. is with a spectrum analyzer. A spectrum analyzer is a neat little gadget that displays the frequency and magnitude of a signal on a little screen. By looking at this and pointing a feed horn connected to the analyzer around, you can quickly locate any potential source of high frequency interference.

Eliminating the problem is often a bit tricky but is sometimes as easy as putting the dish in a different location, or having some sort of screen or reflector in the proper position. First determine the direction of the interference, then see if you can install the dish at the proper arc to get the signals. Be careful if you use trees — all your shielding may be raked up and burned each autumn. Reflector screens can also be used to block interference — however considerable care must be taken since what can reflect a signal coming one direction away from the dish can also reflect one from a different direction into the dish.

The last method that I will cover involves the use of filters. Filters are inserted into the signal path to shunt whatever band width you desire to ground. The frequency and strength of the interference as well as your budget will determine the specific type of filter as well as where in the signal path its placed - whether its after the LNB, or the down converter.

Filters come in many varieties and types - simple notch filters being the most common — these types of filters eliminate only a narrow band of signals, typically a couple of megahertz for the IF band filters. They can come in present frequencies or they can be turnable, either for one notch or several. The reason narrow band filters are used is to avoid filtering the downlinked signal - the more it's filtered the more the picture receives. When using filters you must always consider the tradeoff between loss of T.I. and loss of signal — which, in some cases, can mean poor picture quality.

We can conclude that an ounce of prevention - in the form of a good site survey - is certainly worth several pounds of cure, and usually lots of money as well.

If you have any questions of a technical nature, send them in and we'll try to answer as many as we can in "inView".

Introducing the system that makes it easy.

Easy to program. Easy to use. Easy to sell.

Finally, a satellite system that makes it easy for you and your customers. The new DSB-800 Remote Control Stereo Satellite System from DX—the most user-friendly, all-in-one receiver/antenna positioner ever. In fact, the DSB-800 is so simple a child can use it. That's because it makes all of these adjustments automatically:

AUTOMATIC

- Accurate built-in antenna positioner
- On-screen display and recall
- C and Ku-Band selection with frequency-synthesized tuning
- Stereo mode and bandwidth selection
- Stereo frequency tuning
- Polarity and skew adjustment
- TV/Satellite selection

Plus, it features parental control, subcarrier seek, channel scan, a full-function, easy-to-use remote controller, and it's decoder ready. If that's not enough, it's also the only completely programmable Ku-Band system in the industry today.

Best of all, the DSB-800 is easy to program! Find out more about the DSB-800 and other fine products. Call your local DX distributor, or write to DX Communications, Inc., 10 Skyline Drive, Hawthorne, NY 10532.

As easy to use as your TV.
